Board of Education

Today's high school has the twofold responsibility of providing education for all, while attempting to serve each individual according to his needs and talents. The needs of young people in modern America are surely moving toward the inclusion not merely of their own world but of outer space as well. With the realization of this development, demands upon youth are ever increasing, and the need for solid background is becoming more and more apparent. To this end, the schools must continually strive.
